GALITT, partner of natural security for biometric and middle range contactless payments

Boulogne (France), November 26th, 2010

Natural security is a young and promising company which has just made its innovative offer public. Its challenge is to combine speed and security in order to provide both merchants and consumers with seamless payments and a unique experience regardless of transaction types (face-to-face, customer-activated devices, Internet) and services (payment, loyalty, access control...).

For the last 18 months, natural security and GALITT have been working closely to manage the project, design and specify the chosen solution, provide embedded software components for the prototype of intelligent biometric reader, and deliver the test tools required for simulating the first application exchanges. Based on a partnership agreement, this cooperation has been soliciting the wide competencies of GALITT, whose expertise in secure electronic transactions has been extensively used.

G rard de Moura, Managing Director of GALITT, stated: "The wide set of solutions introduced by natural security is a genuine innovation with respect to payments and more widely to secure electronic transactions, making usages far simpler without weakening their security level. We are proud of having brought our know-how and expertise to contribute to this ambitious project and we wish it will reach a wide international success."

C dric Hozanne, project initiator and Managing Director of natural security, added: "I am very happy with the GALITT partnership which brought a cornerstone to our project. GALITT was indeed able to actively help us in most of the project phases, thanks to the expertise and dynamism of its teams. I also wish to specifically thank G rard de Moura for his personal involvement during these two years. With no doubt this partnership will remain fruitful in the coming years for our two companies."
